

- 1. Model the behavior you would like to see from others. Do unto others as you would have them do unto you.
- 2. Do not let your silence condone disrespectful behavior, yet consider carefully when and where to speak up.
- 3. Without giving up your own convictions, accept that disagreement will exist.
- Don't take your stress out on those around you. Use the counseling resources for students and employees.
- 5. Be a respectful listener.
- 6. Conflict can be healthy if expressed appropriately. Make sure it's a discussion about the ideas or the behaviors, not about the person...You can say: "I don't support or like (description of the behavior)" so the comment is not about the individual.
- 7. Remember that you are not always right—and others are not always wrong.
- 8. Whatever view you feel strongly about, another may feel just as strongly against...and that's okay. Although high emotion is not necessarily the mark of incivility, remember that it may cause a conversation to escalate in unproductive ways.
- 9. Tone of voice matters.
- Work collaboratively with your class, colleagues and friends to define and apply respectful behaviors.

- 11. Consider how your use of technology (email, social media, etc.) helps or hinders a respectful work/ organization environment. Remember that with email there is no voice tone to help convey meaning.
- Rely on facts rather than assumptions. Gather relevant facts especially before acting on assumptions that can damage relationships.
- Take time to learn more about a background or culture you are not familiar with to expand your own perspective and interpersonal skills.
- 14. Have difficult conversations in person or, at a minimum, by telephone, not electronically.
- 15. Adopt a positive and solution-driven approach to resolving conflicts.
- 16. Always remember to say please and thank you.
- 17. Recognize the contributions made by individuals throughout your organization. Show appreciation for contributions at all levels.
- 18. Kindness has a ripple effect that extends far beyond the initial recipient. Practice treating others with respect and consideration no matter the setting.
- 19. Understand your triggers or "hot buttons." Knowing what makes you angry and frustrated enables you to manage your reactions and respond in a more appropriate manner.
- 20. The world always look better from behind a smile!
