WOMEN AT THE THRESHOLD: SUPPORT ANDINSPIRATION

Who is a woman in your life who believes in you? What words and actions do you experience as supportive? Join for conversation with dialogue leader and author, Sarah Pirtle.

Women's support of each other as leaders is critical for transforming a domination oriented culture to a supportive collaborative culture where women's voices, values, and truth are ascending. There will be time to speak of common challenges and hear each other's experiences.

The session will begin with a short presentation of two inspirational dialogue groups. For three years Sarah has participated in Hands Across the Hills featured recently in CBS nightly news which connects citizens in eastern Kentucky coal country and in Leverett, Massachusetts. Secondly, she co-founded the Respect for Girls Project linking teens in Sierra Leone and New England. She received ten national awards for her songwriting, and songs from her "Hope Sings" collection will be part of the session.

THURSDAY, MARCH 25, 2021, 12:00 TO 1:30 PM

Sarah Pirtle is an award-winning author of five books including An Outbreak of Peace which received the Olive Branch Award for outstanding book of the year on world peace. She worked for fifteen years as an adjunct at Lesley University in graduate education. Recently she organized a collaborative zoom concert for the United Nations World Against Racism Day. She provides seventy-five songs from her nine recordings available for free on Sarah Hope Sings. Sarah ultimately gained experience as a Peace Education Coordinator for Traprock Center for Peace and Justice, Massachusetts. (Traprock.org)
