Introduction

The guiding forces behind tenure saw it as a mechanism to ensure academic freedom within the academy as well as a means to make the teaching profession competitive with higher paying careers. They wanted to attract top talent to the academy with sometimes uncompetitive budgets. They also wanted to ensure the free exploration of knowledge was defended as higher education moved from medieval to industrial to technological practices. Almost 80 years later, we are left with uncertainty in regards to how successful tenure has been in securing either of these efforts.

If tenure is about hedging our bets and finding the best possible recipients of a sometimes thirty-year contract, then our responsibility to the students and community is to ensure the outcome is not seen as a foregone conclusion. Tenure at BCC is a formative process, where new faculty have the capacity to grow and develop into educators with whom we feel not only secure, but excited, in offering long-term employment. I believe the processes and procedures in this handbook provide us with the tools required to make responsible tenure decisions for the entirety of the academic affairs unit.

For my part, I want your tenure process to be fair, transparent, open and formative. I believe we have many recently added features that work to this end. The action-based research project keeps us focusing our scholarly efforts on pedagogy and classroom concerns. Mentors ensure that colleagues are properly supported by an academic peer. Other additional high-touch practices ensure that new faculty members are constantly engaged in forging themselves into stronger educators while at BCC.

Ultimately, you have crafted a tenure model at BCC of which you can be proud. When and if concerns arise, we can rest assured that we have a formula which helps us identify competitive talent and keeps faculty serving the students of BCC for lasting and successful careers.

Regards,

Brock L. Fisher, Ph.D.
Vice President of Academic Affairs

Core Competencies of the Bergen Community College Faculty

The Student-Centered Professor

- Effective Teaching Strategies
- Professional Commitment
- Institutional and Community Engagement
- Assessment

BERGEN COMMUNITY COLLEGE TENURE HANDBOOK 9
Competency 1 – Effective Teaching
Bergen Community College professors will implement, and continually improve, teaching and learning that promote both acquisition and applications of knowledge and understanding. Bergen Community College educators will design learning opportunities that acknowledge, draw upon and are enriched by student diversity. An atmosphere of inclusion and understanding will be promoted in all learning environments.

Performance Indicators for Competency 1 – Effective Teaching
The faculty member will:

• Employ strategies (e.g. cooperative/collaborative) that motivate students and guide them to become more active learners
• Encourage students to challenge ideas and sources
• Integrate concrete, real-life situations into learning strategies (e.g., in counseling, library or classroom settings)
• Invite student input on their educational experience (e.g., choice among assignment topics, learning activities, etc.)

• Employ methods that develop student understanding of discipline’s thinking, practice and procedures (e.g., through guided learning opportunities the student will apply the use of the discipline’s “ways of knowing”) and student academic literacy in the discipline or field (e.g., reading, writing, numeracy, technology skills, etc.)

• Develop reciprocity and cooperation among students (interdependence and teamwork)
• Foster connections among students in and out of the classroom, counseling and library environments (learning communities)

• Use diverse perspectives to engage and deepen critical thinking (i.e. diversity as a learning resource)

Competency 2 - Professional Commitment
Bergen Community College professors will continuously examine the effectiveness of their teaching, counseling, or librarianship in terms of student learning. They will demonstrate their commitment to becoming a better teacher, librarian, or counselor by actively participating in professional development. They also will keep abreast of the current scholarship in the fields of teaching and learning. Bergen Community College educators will stay current and continually improve their knowledge and understanding of their discipline. They will participate in activities that promote Bergen Community College’s learning and student success mission, including serving on related college-wide groups and committees, attending professional conferences, and/or participating in other professional organizations.
Performance Indicators for Competency 2 – Professional Commitment

The faculty member will:

- Demonstrate current teaching and learning theory & practice
- Produce professional work (action research or traditional research) that meets standards of scholarship expected of Bergen Community College faculty
- Demonstrate relationship of the Scholarship of Teaching and Learning to improved teaching and learning processes
- Stay current in discipline/academic field (e.g., graduate courses and degrees, professional organizations, conferences, journals and other literature, etc.)
- Contribute to discipline/academic field
- Access faculty development programs and resources
- Participate actively on departmental, divisional and college committees and task forces.
- Collaborate with colleagues and dean/department chair/director to assure and to demonstrate progression of student learning across courses and programs

Competency 3 – Assessment

Bergen Community College professors will measure student learning through consistent, timely formative and summative measures, and promote students’ abilities to self-assess. Assessment practices will invite student feedback on the teaching and learning process as well as on student achievement. Bergen Community College professors will also engage in outcomes-based practice to answer two key questions: “What will the students be able to know or do when they complete this course and/or program of study?” and “How will you know they know or can do what is expected when they have completed the course and/or program of study?”

Bergen Community College has demonstrated its commitment to this practice by its adoption of the Essential Learning Outcomes (LEAP) and the establishment of course and program learning outcomes (e.g., General Education Outcomes/LEAP, AS, AA, Honors, Certificate Programs, etc.). Bergen Community College educators will facilitate student growth in the Essential Learning Outcomes, Course Learning Outcomes, and Program Learning Outcomes through their work with students both in and out of the classroom setting.

Performance Indicators for Competency 3 - Assessment

The faculty member will:

- Employ formative feedback loops to inform students of their learning progress and provide timely feedback on class activities, exams, papers, and/or program
- Align summative evaluations with course outcomes, learning activities (appropriate to level of thinking & performance), or program outcomes
- Design activities to help students refine their abilities to self-assess their learning
• Evaluate effectiveness of assessment strategies and grading practices
• Align learning activities and assessments of course learning outcomes and program learning outcomes, with the student core competencies
• Sequence learning opportunities and assessments throughout courses, programs, and developmental advising to build student understanding and knowledge
• Design assessments that demonstrate student growth in Program Learning Outcomes and help students understand their growth in the acquisition of these outcomes
• Use evidence of student learning to review and improve courses and programs

Competency 4 – Institutional and Community Engagement
Bergen Community College educators will collaborate with the college community and their larger communities (local, regional/state, national, global) in ways that are mutually beneficial to all parties. The purpose of institutional and community engagement is to advance the goals and priorities of the college and to contribute to the public good.

By focusing these engagement efforts on student success, particularly expanding access to and supporting completion of a college education, this competency recognizes the vital role faculty play in the “life of college” in order to improve and enhance the BCC student experience. Furthermore, it emphasizes the value of community partnerships and the need to build and maintain relationships with the people, organizations, and companies who can support the college’s mission.

Performance Indicators for Competency 4 – Institutional and Community Engagement
The faculty member will:
• Participate in college-wide efforts, such as strategic planning, accreditation/self-study and program review
• Participate actively on department, division, college meetings/committees/task forces
• Engage in faculty and college-wide governance opportunities
• Expand knowledge of college connections and contributions to wider communities
• Engage in research projects and service learning experiences for community, industry or government
• Assume leadership roles in college initiatives, student clubs or the college’s community outreach efforts
• Promote the college and its programs to groups within the county, state and country
• Work closely with our high school and university partners to create and strengthen pathways for students

BERGEN COMMUNITY COLLEGE TENURE HANDBOOK
Required Statements
At different times during the tenure process you will be required to submit the following statements. Please consult the annual calendar for when those statements are due.

Professional Strengths
This statement is intended to give an opportunity to explain what strengths you bring to your position and should be no longer than 500 words when submitted in Year 1 and no longer than 1000 words when submitted in Year 5. Highlight your significant strengths in a narrative. Specific examples must be provided and supporting appendices are encouraged. The narrative should describe how you actively participate within the BCC and your professional community and how these activities enhance your classroom teaching and professional scholarship.

End-of-Year Reflection
Briefly reflect upon on your practice. Reflections should examine your personal strengths and weaknesses and areas for improvements. In your reflection address both your students’ needs and professional needs. Limit your reflection to one page.

Philosophy of Teaching
The Philosophy of Teaching describes how you conduct your professional practice and why. It should overtly influence your course resources, such as syllabi, policies, and daily lessons, and it should be unique to you and your discipline. More specifically, the philosophy provides concrete examples reflecting your role (instructor, librarian, or counselor), the role of your students, your instructional strategies and your assessment methods. Limit your Philosophy of Teaching statement to 600 words.

Workload Context
This statement is intended to give an opportunity to explain your workload. Be as specific as possible in explanations and examples and limit content to 500 words. State at the beginning of your narrative the courses you teach, number of credits and preparations. Tables and bullets may be used as appropriate.

1. Explain your workload as specifically as possible. Librarians and counselors should explain the work they are doing. If you are a program coordinator or department chair, mention that here.
2. Content in this statement will include any assistance in administrative and committee work (along with your specific contribution/role and chair of committee).
3. Define and explain significant contributions to the College and Community and how these activities enrich your position at the College and the College’s presence in the community.

Mentor Preference
Your mentor will guide and advocate for you throughout the remainder of your tenure process. Between July 1 and July 15 your dean, the chair of faculty development and the first year orientation chair will match mentors with candidates. Not everyone will receive their first choice and some determinations will be made by the committee as to best fit.

Using the Eligible Mentor List, distributed no later than May 30, indicate your top three choices, in preferential order. Return the completed form to the chair of faculty development by June 30.

Mentor Commitment Form
Thank you for your willingness to work with a new faculty member and guide him or her through the tenure process.

Mentors are obligated to work with their mentees throughout their second, third, fourth and beginning of their fifth year of the tenure process. Three meetings between the candidate, dean and mentor are required per year. Faculty mentors will be released from 14 hours of academic advising per year for the duration of their mentoring commitment.

I understand that I am expected to assist my mentee for duration of 3.5 years, and if at any time I am not able to fulfill this obligation, I must notify my mentee, the mentee’s dean, and the chair of faculty development in writing.

Research-Based Professional Development Project

In year 2 you will plan for your RBPD. RBPD is a four semester commitment to improving your practice through inquiry in a systematic manner. Your approach will vary according to the context of your study, your beliefs and the strategies you employ.

The purpose of this research is to seek ways to transform quality of teaching and teaching related activities, thereby enhancing student learning. Your research will be participatory and collaborative while employing reflection and problem-solving.

Collaboration and consultation with colleagues is encouraged to help design and carry out investigations. Collaborative projects with colleagues are also encouraged. Your dean, department chair, mentor and the larger BCC community will support and encourage you through this process of theorizing, questioning, collecting and analyzing data and then sharing your results and the implementation of those results. RBPD will not only inform your personal professional development, but it can influence curriculum, program and policy development through informed action. Faculty currently immersed in other research may apply for an exception to do an alternate project. Requests for alternate projects must be made in writing to the Vice President of Academic Affairs and the Divisional Dean no later than the First Friday in March of the faculty member’s second year on the tenure track.

As you consider the possibilities for your RBPD project consider the professional opportunities this process affords you to gain knowledge and skills through and to become critical and reflective about your practice. Your RBPD questions should emanate from areas you see as problematic or that are discrepancies between what is intended and what occurs.

Support will be available during the duration of your project.
Research-Based Professional Development Project Plan Template

Use this template as both a guide and a worksheet to organize your Research Based Professional Development Research Project. Completing each section will move you through the steps design and then implement an RBPD project in your practice. Instructions are provided in the Year 2 and Year 3 Handbooks.

Tenure Review Committee

The tenure process has two concurrent components. One component, the successful completion of the Research-Based Professional Development Project, is a prerequisite to be eligible for consideration for tenure by the Tenure Review Committee. This component is formative and developmental and is supervised by the candidate’s dean and is supported by Faculty Development. The other component is the assessment of the candidate’s ongoing professional practice and is supervised by the candidate’s dean with confirmation of satisfaction from the Vice President of Academic Affairs and the President.

Over the course of the pre-tenure period, candidates receive periodic feedback from their dean on their progress towards completing their Research-Based Professional Development and yearly professional performance and growth. Both of these components culminate in the fifth year evaluation by the Tenure Review Committee (TRC), followed by an appropriate recommendation submitted to the candidate’s dean.

The TRC is formed in the following manner and will consist of three (3) members:
1. The full-time tenure and tenure-track faculty from each division will elect one (1) tenured faculty member annually to serve in an advisory role to the dean in making the year’s tenure recommendations.
2. The dean will appoint two (2) tenured faculty members to serve annually in an advisory role to the dean in making the year’s tenure recommendations.
3. The dean will make the year’s appointments before the election is conducted in the division.

The TRC participates in a summative assessment of the eligible candidate’s pre-tenure documentation and provides written remarks and summaries to be consulted by the dean in making their recommendation. The TRC’s primary role is to holistically review information relative to the candidate’s professional work and not give unbalanced weight to one individual artifact or performance record. The TRC does not re-evaluate the Research-Based Professional Development project.
Appendix A

The Essential Learning Outcomes (LEAP) - Beginning in school, and continuing at successively higher levels across their college studies, students should prepare for twenty-first-century challenges by gaining:

Knowledge of Human Cultures and the Physical and Natural World
• Through study in the sciences and mathematics, social sciences, humanities, histories, languages, and the arts and focused by engagement with big questions, both contemporary and enduring

Intellectual and Practical Skills, including
• Inquiry and analysis
• Critical and creative thinking
• Written and oral communication
• Quantitative literacy
• Information literacy
• Teamwork and problem solving

Practiced extensively, across the curriculum, in the context of progressively more challenging problems, projects, and standards for performance

Personal and Social Responsibility, including
• Civic knowledge and engagement—local and global
• Intercultural knowledge and competence
• Ethical reasoning and action
• Foundations and skills for lifelong learning

Anchored through active involvement with diverse communities and real-world challenges

Integrative and Applied Learning, including
• Synthesis and advanced accomplishment across general and specialized studies

Demonstrated through the application of knowledge, skills, and responsibilities to new settings and complex problems
